THE NEW YORK SUN SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 1, 1859.

Present State of Mexican Affairs.

The New Orleans mails, of which several days supply have reached us at the same time, place us in possession of New Orleans papers and cor-respondence, which furnish the following information. A Miniatitlan correspondent, 16th,

The Aurora Borealis was observed at Vera Cruz, as in other places to the south, but it was only for a short time visible, on account of the clouded state of short time visible, on account of the clouded state of the atmosphere.

The crisis for the solution of the Mexican imbroglio is approaching at a slow but sure pace. Muranos lives in hopes of getting money from the clergy, and promises to re-establish order and tranquility through-out the country, if the church will advance to him $4.0.00 immediately, and later $5.000.00 more.— JUARIZ has based all his hopes upon assistance from the United States, and the mission of Lerke de Tejs-da is looked upon as the only possible salvation of his reave in disgust, and without having accomplished anything.

Mr. Furners says the ministerleft on account of bad health, but it is well known that his health was never better than during his stay in this country. We have, moreover, in Mr. McLane's own words, while so-journing in our city, a sufficient explanation of his sudden departure. He said, "I am dissatisfied with the course which the Juanez Administration is pursuing toward the United States: I will not permit myself to be humbugged, and should my government not preperly sustain me, I shall immediately resign."

The correspondent of the New Orleans Course.

cent, dating from Vera Cruz, 8th, says:

Mr. McLann bas semi-officially resigned, and will never come back to Mexico, unless under different auspices. He has been most scandalously deceived both here and at home, and unless he can bring Buchanan up to the rack of doing something, or Juanz to the honesty of keeping a promise, there is an end of the mission. In the absence of a decided ultimatum from Mr. Buchanan, which would allow him to say, "Do this or fight," he is useless here, except as a polite chapter on to gailant the beauties of Sen. Andreas de Turla about on fete days.

It is given out that sickness, or impaired health, hurried the Minister off, but to us on the spot this is all gammon. I am not blind nor near-sighted, and when I saw him a few days ago he looked quite healthy, and was really lively. He had visited up and down the coast, had good living, sea baths and breezes, frequent excursions on the Brooklyn, and, withsi, a very pleasant time of it: moreover, he has kept good company, been with the women, and hobnobed over champagne just like a well man, to much to impose on a clear-sighted individual like your correspondent. cent, dating from Vera Cruz, 8th, says:

much to impose on a clear-sighted individual like your correspondent.

The bishops of the various diocases of Mexico were recently assembled together by order of the archibishops in the city of Mexico, to consider the merits and demerits of the war. The voice of the Church is still for war, though its pockets clamor loudly against the expenses. The parires are willing to see the slaughter go on, and pray for a bloody war, but they are so miserly with their cash that I mightily fear they are not only losing the country, but they are losing caste. Everybody says, give us money, and the revolution shall be put down; and, though all this gas is for their benefit, to maintain their odious prescriptions, yet they fail to make these pecuniary sacrinoss which are noedful to bring about such sanguinary results. The Archbishop proposed to let the war out on contract to any party who would do the rough work cheapest. Meranor was the only bidder, and be proposed, in consideration of the sum of $400,000 in cast, and $50,000,000 in short installments, to put and the contract to any party who much do the rough work cheapest. ne proposed, in consideration of the sum of $400,000 in case, and $5,000,000 in short installments, to put in end to the row, and reinstate the church in its prerogatives. Now, I have but little doubt of Misason's success, if the Church should come down handsomely and stick up to him courageously; for the man who pays best, rets the bigest crowd of solliers behind him in this country. But, unfortunately, a dissenting votce was raised, and the Bishop of Mungia said, "let the war take care of itself; we have juid out enough money; we are cheated on all dides?" That sentence told the story, and the balance of the seasion was held in secret.

Letters from Mexico relate a "transaction" between finance and the Archbishop, which reflects on the ionesty of the one and the sagacity of the other. The enerable prelate was in debt, or rather Misamos held or shave these obligations at the rate of 50 per cent, which Misamos greed to, and the Archbishop paid not the treasury. He then sent for his motes, and was rather astonished to find that Misamos had just odd them to a broker at a discount of 30 per cent, hereby obtaining within 15 per cent. of their full value. His reverence was full of anger, and sought to protect, but the notaries could do nothing for him.

THE LOST AND FOUND, OR LIFE AMONG THE POOR. By Samuel B. Halliday. New York: BLAKEMAN & MASON, Publishers, 310 Broadway. The author states that he is a missionary of e managers of the "Home for the Friendl With the experience derived from such a position, which constantly opens to him many scenes of distress shut out from the general community, he seeks to present an exhibit of facts. The volume is therefore mostly a compilation of little life sketches, simply told, but of much in-

It has, however, statistical and other information relating to New York, viz .: - The Almshouse and its operations; the Sanitary Association movements, including the domicils of New York ; the diseases and general mortality of the city; its intemperance, pauperism, vice and crime, &c., &c., which is of high interest to all of our citizens, and of which, at different times, our journal may give extracts.

THE STUDENT'S HEME. By David Hume. New York: Hanpen & BROTHERS, Pub ishers. This is a history of England, from the earliest times to the revolution in 1688, with researches of recent Historians continued down to 1858. It is got up in good form for student and school use, and is well illustrated by wood engravings. THE TELEGRAPH MANUAL. By Tal. P. Shaffaer, of Kentucky. New York: Pubney & Russell, Pub-lishers, 79 John st.

This is a complete history and description of the Semaphore, Electric, and Magnetic Telegraphs, ancient and modern, of Europe, Asia, Africa and America. The book is got up in a neat and most substantial mechanical style, being intended as an operator's text-book throughout the land, as also a complete record of the invention as it now exists. The engravings and authorship are such as to secure this result, and its merits will also secure for it a niche nmong the most noted scientific works of the day.

THE DRAF SHOPMAKER, AND OTHER STORIES. By Philip Barrett. New York: M. W. Dodd, Publisher, 506 Broadway.

SHADOWS AND SUSSIESE, AS ILLUSTRATED IN THE HISTORY OF NOBLE CHARACTERS. By Rev. Ersking Neals. New York: M. W. Dodd, Publisher, 506 Broadway.

These are two small volumes for Juvenile and Sunday School service. The matter in them s attractive and judiciously selected.

THE TEACHER'S ASSISTANT. By Charles Northend, A. M., author of "The Teacher and Parent," &c. Boston: Croser Neumons & Co., Publishers; New York: F. C. Brownell, 346 Broadway. This is intended to be a collection of hints and nethods in school discipline and instruction. It is comprised in a series of familiar letters to one entering upon the Teacher's work.

REPRESENTATIVE MEN OF THE NEW TESTA-MENT. By George C. Baldwin, D. D. New York: BLAKEMAN & MASON, Publishers. 310 Broadway. This took has rather a novel characteristic. The noted characters of the New Testament are taken up seriatim, and characters applied to them in accordance with the distinctive traits of their lives. Thus, John the Baptist is portrayed as "The Herald Preacher;" HEROD, as the Sensual man: PETER, as the Impulsive man; Judas, as the Avaricious man; Johs, as the Beloved man; THOMAS, as the Doubter; NICODEMUS, as the Religious Inquirer; ANABIAS, as the Liar; STE-PHEN, as the Martyr Deacon; AGRIPPA, as the Almost Christian; and PAUL as the Great Man. N. Y. CITY REGISTER — H. WILSON, Publisher, 379 Broadway. This is a Manual of all the Institutions, Organizations, Societies, Lims of Travel, &c., &c., &c., with which the city abounds.

Dr. Grebam—the Lorieg Marder. The New Orleans correspondent of the Charles ton Courier, writing from that city, Sept. 20th,

Says:

Last evening, at about a quarter-past eight o'clock, the well known Dr. Robert M. Graham was shot in an affrag with Mr. Ernser Tolerana. Probably there has occurred in this city, for the last ten years, no event that has created so much sensation, or excited so much comment.

Dr. Graham was unfortunate in being overcome now and then with a craving, a morbid longing for liquor; and when under the influence of this simulus he, otherwise calm, quiet, courteous, a thorough gentleman in demeaner and appearance, became obstinate, hot headed, quarrelsome, dangerous. His superior cducation and skill as a physician, fine intelligence, pleasant manner, handsome, dignified person, and highly respectable and influential connexions here, made him very popular; and his grievous weakness was borne with for his many good qualities, and the esteem had for his family. It was often predicted to him, however, by his own triends, that he would die by violence, or, as one of them told him, "Graham, mark me, you will die in your boots and in the gutter." The prediction has been verified to the letter.

Dr. Graham's name is known throughout the Univ.

gutter." The prediction has been verified to the letter.

Dr. Graham's name is known throughout the United States, from his killing Mr. Louiso, in New York, when intoxicated, from his trial, condemnation, imprisonment, pardon and release. His re-appearance in his old haunts here created a singular sensation. I never shall forget the first time I met him, after his return from his northern prison. He stood in front of a drug store, that for many years was at the corner of St. Charles and Common streets, and in which he had an interest. It was a gathering place for many street loungers and politicians. He had been seen there year after year when he went to New York, and while in prison, his portly form was much missed; it was not known that he was going to come back, and I was fairly start ed, when, on turning the corner one morning, I saw I im in his old place, in his usual cany attitude, looking just the same, cigar in mouth and small cane in hand—only a deathly pallor had replaced the usual beathy color of his face. The New York scene of blood flashed over me; I averted my head, passed

The same impression was no doubt produced on The same impression was no doubt produced on the community generally, and for a long time this pallid-faced man was a stranger in the community when he had lived so long, where there had been so many to give him a cordial grasp of the band. He seemed prepared for this; had no doubt made up his mind to do it, and perhaps had a secret, defying pleasure in staying in his old haunts, and attending, with silent pride, to the duties of his profession.

and the reserved, unobtrisive course pursued by Dr. Granam, his attention to his profession, his avoidance of his former weakness, after awhile induced many to forget what had passed, and the doctor regained much of his old social sequaintance and a large share of professional patronage.

But the morbid craving for stimulus, though once quenched in blood, could not be cured. It came back after a while, and it became known that Doctor Granam has occasional relapses into his old habit of intoxication. Still he contrived not to let this be seen about the streets, and through the influence of his family and friends, he was a year ago elected by the American party, thy Physician.

A short time ago, he lost the office, at the expiration of the term, by the election of a Dr. Harr, and for a fortnight, it appears, had been under the impression that Mr. Ensuer TOLEDANO, a young man, prominent in the American party, had procured his defeat. It was known that he had expressed himely openly, for some days past, in violent terms against TOLEDANO, cursing him, and avowing his purpose to shoot him at sight. These expressions and this resolve were uttered while Dr. Granam was under the influence of liquor, which, it appears, he had been since Thursday last, so much so as to be generally noticed.

Last night, the Chief of Police, Mr. Adams, who is related to Granam was related to Granam was related to Granam was related to Granam was such the Granam was such the former of the procession of the proc purpose to shoot him at sight. These expressions and this resolve were uttered while Dr. Gramaw was under the influence of liquor, which, it appears, he had been since Thursday last, so much so as to be generally noticed.

Last night, the Chief of Police, Mr. Adams, who is related to Gramam in some way, saw him at the Raby Coffee-house on Common st.—a popular resort—and noticed that he was in liquor. He felt a presentiment something was going to happen, should Gramam remain in that condition in so public a place; he went up to him and told him he must go home; if he eveated any disturbance he would arrest him and lock him up for the night. Gramam insisted that he was not intoxicated, but promised to go home soon. Mr. Adams left him to meet some police officers at his own private office, promising himself to return to the Ruby and get Gramam away and take him home. A few moments after he was called out and told that Dr. Gramam had just been shet dead.

Ensient Toledano was a cellege mate of mine; I shall simply say of him, however, that he is a member of one of our oldest and most respected creole families; and though somewhat wild, the young man has never been accused of anything mean or dishonorable. His own statements of this sad affair, as I heard if from him in the "bock-up," (where his manner was camposed, though his voice now and then was a little choked,) was to this effect:

I p to within a fortnight ago, he and Dr. Gramam were on the most courteous terms. He then noticed a change in Gramam's manner, which became cold and finally entirely estranged. He paid no attention to this, as he was busy with his candidateship for clerk of one of the district courts. Last Saturday the Street Commissioner sent him word, through Alderman Musnor, that Dr. Gramam was going about the streets abusing him, and threatning to kill him at sight. The same news was given bim by other parties. His friends advised him to arm himself, as Gramam was non hea appeared on St. Charles, the met grama was proved by the event of the eve bead, caught sight of Tolerano, (who is a small man) gave him a scowling look, and put his right hand up to his left-coat side, as it to draw a weapon. Tolerano saw the look and motion, drew his revolver, and fired the five shots with singular rapidity and most remarkable steadiness of aim. Dr. Grahan did not fire; he did not have time I suppose. He rushed towards Tolerano, who, drew back, and Dr. Grahan staggered out into the street and fell in the mud and water, dead. His pistod, a small pocket Deraisones—was picked up in the street loaled. Tolerano immediately exclaimed, "I am the man that did it; I did it in self-defence!" He surrendered himself quickly, and was taken to the police lockup, where his friends soon followed.

The body of the dead man was taken into the coffee-bouse, the dears of which were closed, and a physician was on the spot specific; but his skill was of no avail. The Chief of Police then had his body taken to his private office, and there, after hearing Tolkmano's statement, the parting with me by slapping his breast and saying energetically "there is no purer conscience than mine!") stretched out on a table, I saw the unfirtunate man, his large handsome form stiffened; his pantaloons and boots corred with mud; his cast, vest and cravat off; his shirt stained with mud and a little blood; his arms crossed; his hands and wrists blackened; tied with his cravat; his shirt bosom partly open; and his fine features white and fixed forever. There was no expression of pain about the countenance; it was calm and sector. A physician standing by showed me the wounds; three small black spots below the right breast, so close together that the hand could cover them, and one in the The last I had seen of the man he stood at my el-

The London Times suggests the immediate dispatch of the Great Eastern to China.

The decease of Mr. Besner, the eminent Engineer, occurred at his residence in London on the 15th inst. On the 5th, he was carried from the Great Eastern to his residence in a very dangerous and alarming condition, having been seized with paralysis, induced, it was believed, by over-mental anxiety.

The Canada Prize Fight.

The Canada Prize Fiaht.

Prick and Krill are both completing their training in Canada, the one at Cowtharts, Fort Erie, the other near Point Albino. They are both in excellent concition, "as fine as silk," and anticipating with equal confidence the eventful 6th of October. Unfortunately they can't both win, and, if things go on right, one will almost inevitably lose; and which one that will be, looking at the present condition of things, it does not seem possible to conjecture. The chapter of secidents is always between the prediction and the end it looks to, and we never knew of a fight in which it was so eminently the only thing to be counted on. There does not appear to be in either man a weak point to argue from. Each man has made a remarkable fight. Krilly's battle in Australia with a big man, though conducted in a very loose manner, extended over an unprecedented time, and, if it perhaps lacked a little in punishing power, showed great game. There was even more game shown in the disposition previous to the fight than in the fight itself, as it is known that Erilly, then tolerably well off, sold all his goods, and put the money on the battle. He is known to every metropolitan, also, to be a trim, strong man, and a very fine sparrer. He will have no chance to lay off in this fight, however.

PRICE, on the other hand, is a man who don't know when he is whipped, and won't stop to inquire. In his fight with Conurs, when he was so badly off that the betting round the ring was one hundred to ten on Conurn, by his simple, persevering game, he restored the scale, and even made it thirty to fifteen on PRICE; and if the light had lasted would have won the fight. In severity this battle was far before Kally's in Australia. PRICE is not out of condition as he then was, and he has since learned to spar; and, beside, that was a fight full of experiences; he learned much in it. But he has not got Conurn to deal with; and if the man he has is not so remarkable as a boxer, he is a wickeder man, who if he once gets the scal

American Policy in the China War.

The dispatches received by the Government, narrate with minuteness the recent events in China. Flag-officer TATNALL says, that the British officer in charge of the gunboats having visited him, said nothing about aid, but his silent appeal was powerful indeed. During the few moments he was on board the Powhatan, he would look anxiously at his Admiral and at his boats. After he left, continues Capt. TATNALL, "I held a conversation with our Commissioner, Mr. WARD, and he agreed with me perfectly, that under the circumstances of our position with the English, and the aid the Admiral had tendered me the day before, I could do no less than tow the boats to his relief; I made the offer, which was thankfully and promptly accepted. While the boats were making fast to the hawsers, the boats were making fast to the hawsers, which I veered astero, I insisted on Mr. Ward and his suite leaving Toey-Wan, and going on beard one of the junks, for reasons which will be obvious. He at first reluctantly yielded, and lefs us, but soon returned in one of the English beats, declaring that as the Trey-Wan was his heme, and going under fire with his approbation and concurrence, I reluctantly yielded te his gallant impulse." Capt. TATNALL towed the boats through the British line to within a short distance of the Admiral, whose flag was flying, when casting them off he retired to the rear of the line, and anchored for the night. He took up his position, asit might enable him to aid up his position, as it might enable him to aid the wounded, and should any boats be sunk, to rescue their crews,—in other words to afford all the aid consistent with words to afford all the aid consistent with "neutrality." Baving been informed by a British officer that the Admiral was dangerously wounded, Capt. TArnal. went in a barge to visit him, and when within a few feet of the Cormorant, a round shot struck the boat, killed the coxswain, Mr. Harr, of Brocklyn, N. Y., and slightly wounded Flag-Lieutenant TRENCHARD. They reached the Cormorant before the boat entirely sunk. TAINALL says the Chinese Commissioners had previously notified Mr. WARD of their arrangement, and requested him to accompany the British and French Ministers to the Peiho. To this he consented, thereby, to a certain extent, assuming the same platform with the latter. The sincerity of the Commissioners was much doubted at the time.

By 2 or 3 o'clock, Lord Palmeston is in his room, elbow deep in dispatches, and walled about with office boxes. Visitors at the house see nothing of him till the late dinner at 8, and that dispatched—though there may be an adjournment to the drawing room, and even the bibliard room, where the perennial host still handles his cue like a master, and again without spectacles—Lord Palmeston is no more visible after 10, but the lights are turning in his private room till 12 or 1 o'clock, or even later. The editor of the Portland Argus, while at Baltimore, on Thursday last, made an excursion in her. He says that "time occupied in this trip of thirty four miles, was just two hours and a half from the time the fastenings were cast off from the wharf until she was again at her moorings and we upon terra firma." This must be considered an admirable performance. When the vessel was going at the rate of sixteen miles an hour, there was scarcely any percentible inc. an hour, there was scarcely any perceptible jar, at the disturbance of the water by the passage of the vessel was marvelously slight. So clean, indeed, was her movement, that a skiff would scarcely have felt any agitation in crossing her wake.
